

Leaders in LEARNING:

A Global Education for the 21st Century

Brooklyn The City University of New York
College

BROOKLYN COLLEGE, FOUNDED IN 1930, PROVIDES STUDENTS WITH AN EXCEPTIONAL EDUCATION BY COMBINING A TRADITION OF RIGOROUS ACADEMICS, EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING AND INDIVIDUALIZED SUPPORT — ALL ROOTED IN NEW YORK CITY CULTURE.

With a world-class faculty and highly respected academic programs, Brooklyn College of the City University of New York is an ideal place for students interested in an education of superior quality. Under the leadership of President Karen L. Gould, the college has been energized by the formation of five schools: Business; Education; Humanities and Social Sciences; Natural and Behavioral Sciences; and Visual, Media and Performing Arts. The schools function as centers of excellence that enhance students' learning in their fields of study and attract top entrepreneurs, artists and scientists to our faculty. We also offer honors programs, research and study abroad opportunities, and other forms of engaged learning that allow students to gain experience outside the classroom.

The Office of International Student Services assists our international students by ensuring they receive the necessary support to succeed academically and socially. Our staff acts as advocates, offering guidance with visa and immigration processes and compliance, and referrals to resources on and off campus.

Our student body represents 150 countries and speaks nearly 105 languages, creating a campus with a global perspective.

The faculty at Brooklyn College are active scholars and professionals in their fields who challenge students to take charge of their future.

Last year, Brooklyn College faculty received more than $10 million in external funding to pursue their research and artistic endeavors from such organizations as:

- the National Endowment for the Arts, for theater, art, literary and music projects;
- the National Science Foundation, for environmental and alternative energy research;
- the National Institutes of Health, for drug and disease research, including tuberculosis, Parkinson's and HIV/AIDS; and
- the Leakey Foundation, for archaeological research.

We enroll nearly 17,000 undergraduate and graduate students in more than 120 majors, minors and concentrations.

Six highly competitive honors programs attract some of the most academically gifted students in the country. Graduates go on to become doctors, engineers, university professors, lawyers and leaders in a variety of other fields.

William E. Macaulay Honors College students are considered to be the most able and highly achieving students in New York.

The Scholars Program, the oldest honors program in the City University of New York and a model for similar programs throughout the United States, offers interdisciplinary seminars and guided research.

The Coordinated B.A.–M.D. Program trains students to become physicians and lays the groundwork for acceptance into the State University of New York Downstate College of Medicine.

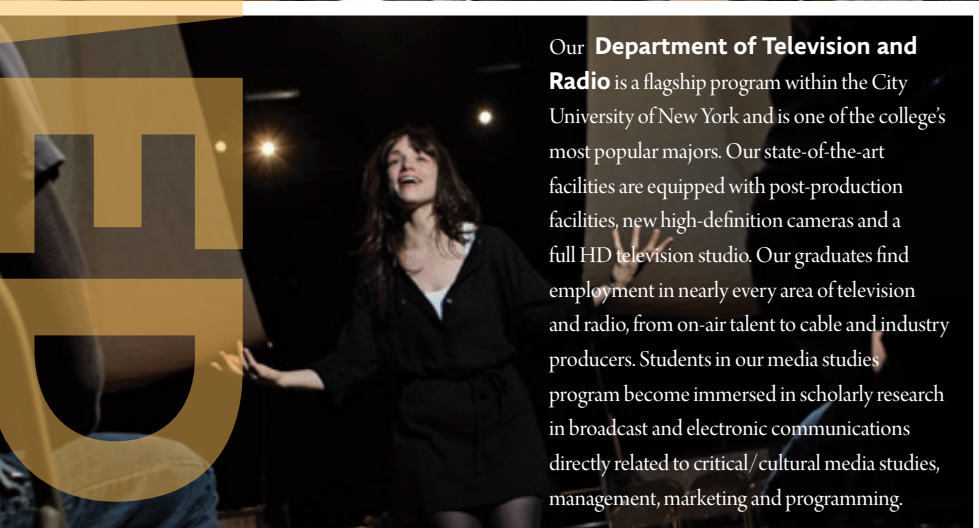

The Coordinated Engineering Honors Program offers a course of study equivalent to the first two years at an engineering school and guaranteed transfer to a coordinating school, including Cooper Union and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT).

CINEMA

DEPT

OF

THE

Our Department of Television and Radio is a flagship program within the City University of New York and is one of the college's most popular majors. Our state-of-the-art facilities are equipped with post-production facilities, new high-definition cameras and a full HD television studio. Our graduates find employment in nearly every area of television and radio, from on-air talent to cable and industry producers. Students in our media studies program become immersed in scholarly research in broadcast and electronic communications directly related to critical/cultural media studies, management, marketing and programming.

The Barry R. Feirstein Graduate School of Cinema is the college's most ambitious academic undertaking in recent history. Located at Steiner Studios in Brooklyn, the largest studio complex on the East Coast of the United States, it will be the nation's only graduate program seamlessly integrated into a working studio lot. Students will study in the midst of major motion pictures, independent films, music videos and television shows in production. Jonathan Wacks, the school's founding dean, brings extensive experience within the industry and film education, including directing, producing and screenwriting.

Throughout their studies, students will make valuable connections in New York City's entertainment industry. The assembled faculty are professional directors, cinematographers, producers, editors, designers and composers. Their experience and extensive contacts in their field will inform the school's rigorous academic curriculum.

With the first class anticipated to enter in fall 2014, the School of Cinema is set to offer students the most competitive academic and professional training in the entertainment industry.

TELEVISION AND RADIO DEGREES

Master of Fine Arts

- > Television Production
- > Performance and Interactive Media Arts

Master of Science

- > Media Studies

CINEMA DEGREES

Master of Arts

- > Cinema Studies

Master of Fine Arts

- > Animation and Visual Effects
- > Cinematography
- > Directing
- > Musical Scoring
- > Post-production (tracks in picture, sound and visual effects)
- > Producing/Production Management
- > Production Design
- > Screenwriting

Master of Science

- > Entertainment Industry Management

Students in our School of Business graduate with the tools to explore, recognize and seize financial opportunities throughout the global marketplace. The school prepares students for future success through a combination of excellent classroom learning and interaction with prominent business leaders. Our faculty partner with the college's Magner Career Center to offer students internships in such international firms as Goldman Sachs, Deloitte and PricewaterhouseCoopers as well as the New York Stock Exchange.

Global studies, an interdisciplinary minor in our Economics Department, provides our students with a strong foundation in financial, political and cultural issues to prepare them to forge strong economic relations on an international scale.

DEPARTMENTS

The School of Business attracts the college's largest student body, who major in:

- > Accounting
- > Economics
- > Finance and Business Management

STEINER

36%
of New York City's population is foreign born.

Brooklyn College is close to one of the largest Chinese neighborhoods and thriving markets in New York City.

New York City — the global capital of finance, art, theater, publishing and scientific research — is a second campus for Brooklyn College. The city represents the new America: globally engaged, enriched by a multicultural society and infused with ideas from every sphere.

New York City is ranked alongside Mumbai, Shanghai, Beijing and Berlin as one of the best cities for business, cultural innovation and lifestyle. It was singled out as being first in cultural vibrancy, research universities, work flexibility, and sports and leisure. It placed second among these thriving cities for an entrepreneurial environment and international tourism.

Brooklyn has emerged as the city's most energetic borough. The vitality of its growth is exemplified by the development of significant financial and technology centers, and the establishment of artistic and cultural communities.

Students from around the world come to Brooklyn College to experience the best that New York City and Brooklyn offer. They enjoy 150 academic, cultural and social organizations that expose them to theater, art and sports events as well as scholarly and scientific pursuits. Because of our ability to augment an excellent education with the city's resources, they graduate with the expertise and talents to excel, as many of our alumni have in their chosen profession.

NEW YORK CITY

For more information:

Office of International Student Services

Phone: +1 718.951.4477

E-mail: international@brooklyn.cuny.edu

Brooklyn The City University of New York College

2900 Bedford Avenue
Brooklyn, NY 11210-2889